In his message, the Governor said that Id ul Zuha, which is also known as Eid al Adha reminds all of the absolute trust of Ibrahim (Abraham) in Almighty Allah. This festival is celebrated with traditional fervor and gaiety in India and other parts of the world with special prayer meetings for the well being of human beings and this is happily marked with the distribution of gifts and eatables to relatives, neighbours and the needy. In all essence, this Festival promotes goodwill, amity and brotherhood among the people, the Governor said.

May this sacred occasion continue to strengthen our composite culture, unity and integrity of the society and the Nation, the Governor wished.
